Dear Reader

All religions of the world teach the basic principles of ethics and morals. They help us to lead a better life. They explain in simple language how to control anger, make friends, and create an atmosphere of love and peace and many other aspects of the art of living.

People of all ages and cultures, irrespective of caste, creed or religion can benefit from the advice given in these gift books.

O.P. Ghai.

JAINISM

Hinduism was, in its earlier phases, dominated by unalterable caste distinctions, animal sacrifice, and other primitive practices. These offended a great many sensitive people in India who eventually sought for reforms. Jainism was the first organized effort to effect such reform.

Peace, Repentance,

Work, Wrath

Anger

*A*nger is not for the wise or the religious. They will endure persecution and not be angry. Only the ignorant and the sinful will give way to anger.

Brotherhood

*Be fair and impartial to all. Treat all men as brothers at all times. As one treats men, so should he treat all animals.
They are also our brothers.*

Courage

2559 C

A man may conquer thousands and thousands of invincible foes but that is of no real consequence; his greatest victory is when he conquers only his own self through indomitable courage.

Deeds

*The good show the way to others by their good acts. Each day passes never to return.
Therefore, do good at all times, for you can never call back a day to perform a good deed that was not done.*

Duty

*A wise man discovers his duty and does it at all costs.
It is the duty of all to be impartial and to abstain from causing injury to all living things.*

Evil

1315

*A*void all evil. One may commit evil by doing something wrong or by approving another's evil act. Do not cause others to sin.

Faith

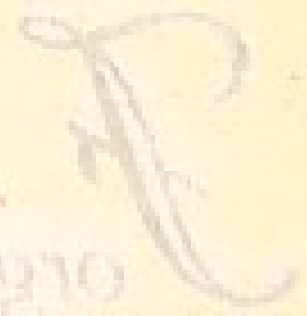

times

The man of faith has chosen the right pathway. He should practise his faith at all times.

Family

The child should support his parents when he is able to do so. Although the family should work together to aid each other, each one must suffer for his own deeds. One's family is of no use to him at the time of judgement. Then he shall be judged in accordance with his deeds.

Forgiveness

friends

I forgive all the living beings. All living beings may forgive me. I cherish friendly feelings towards all. I do not hold any ill will towards man, beast or plant.

F riends

*Do not allow yourself to be deluded by evil associates.
Make friends with those who are considerate both towards other people and towards animals.*

Giving

Golden Rule

Charity without fellow-feeling is like sowing a fallow land.

Golden Rule

*One should treat all beings as he himself would be treated.
Since all beings hate pain, he should kill nothing.*

Guidance

*F*rom the roots grows up the trunk of the tree, from the trunk shoot up the branches, out of them grow the twigs and the leaves; and then there are produced flowers, fruits and juice. Similarly, obedience to the guidance of Jina is the root of the tree of religion and the liberation is the highest resultant (juice). It is through this guidance that one achieves immortal renown and abiding peace.

Happiness

515
H

Happiness comes through self-control. The man who is able to subdue himself will find happiness in this and in the next world.

Hate

1000

Hatred will drag down the soul and defile it. To attain purity of soul, one should avoid hatred at all costs.

Home

THE WOMAN

The child should support his father and mother when he is able to do so and they are in need. But, in religious matters, the man must stand alone.

Immortality

There will be a life hereafter. The evil shall go to hell and the good to heaven. In heaven the soul develops to perfection.

Justice

God, let me not stray away from the path of justice. I may remain ever steadfast against the denunciation by others; should ever be unmindful of the prospects of immediate death or life through millenniums, keeping my equanimity in poverty and plenty.

Love

16. MR

*O*ne should show compassion to all creatures, and obey the Law at all times.

Man

Man is a creation of God, made in the likeness of God. He has been made a little less than the divine. As sons of the living God, men are clay in the hands of God, the potter, to do with as He wills.

Meditation

Contemplation is the means of obtaining stability of mind. Even though one is severely persecuted, one must obey the law of silent meditation.

Obedience

The fool refuses to obey the Law and is sorry when he reaches the hour of death. Man is created to fulfil the law of God. The wise and pious are always obedient to the law of God.

Peace

*The enlightened will make peace the foundation of their lives. All men should live in peace with their fellow beings.
This is the Lord's desire.*

Repentance

Repent of pleasures and instruct others to do so. If one lives only for the present, and does not prepare for the future, one will repent later on.

Sincerity

15

Clear thinking comes through sincere and earnest effort. One can be proficient in religious practices only to the degree that one is earnest and sincere. Through sincere actions one becomes pure.

ar

W Galt

Never kill anything for any reason whatsoever. The wise live at peace with all men, whatever the cost. War is totally condemned.

Wealth

*W*ealth is fleeting and will never completely satisfy anyone. To put faith in wealth is to be a fool, for it will cause pain both in this world and in the next.

Work

1915

A day once gone will never return. Therefore, one should be diligent each moment to do good. We reach the goal of the good life by pious works.

Wrath

*W*rath is a passion which defiles the soul. The wise man will avoid wrath lest he be caught in the toils of the passion as a fly is caught in glue. Even though he is beaten, the religionist will not give way to wrath.
